Bushfires in Australia

Catastrophic Bushfires in Australia

Dear Agents,

Parts of Australia are currently experiencing one of the most devastating bushfires seasons in many years.

Australia is suffering from an early bushfire season with fires across several states burning through hundreds of thousands of hectares and destroying hundreds of properties with loss of lives.

New South Wales has been the most severely hit, with more than 1.65m hectares razed, an area significantly larger than suburban Sydney. Over 600 homes and properties have been destroyed. At one point firefighters were battling a fire front of over 6,000km long, equivalent to a return trip between Sydney and Perth.

In Queensland, 20 homes have been lost and about 180,000ha burned. In Victoria, where the bushfire season usually starts later, 100km/h winds fanned more than 60 blazes during an unprecedented heatwave on Thursday. The most extreme warning, a code red, was issued for the north-western and central regions.

These fires have also impacted the wharfs due to smoke and haze at times causing delays due to wharf closures as workers were not being able to work through the thick smoke.

Please do not hesitate to contact us should you have any further queries or questions.

Kind regards,

The team at DSH Global Logistics.
